

Do you put People First?

Audiologist – Sales Representative required

Oticon, founded in 1904, is a company driven by a dedication to doing things better and our innovative culture is geared to meet the needs of a changing world. We are looking for an experienced audiologist to join the Oticon team of training and support audiologists. Work with us to create the future of hearing care, help people with hearing loss, and passionately strive to empower people.

If you have :

- a strong clinical audiological background
- experience in fitting and evaluating hearing aids
- good communication skills
- a current driving license and a willingness to travel
- and most of all – enthusiasm!

then you may be interested in joining our team as an Audiology Sales Representative.

The role is to support and develop the established audiological, educational and medical customer bases, to promote Oticon, Phonic Ear and Interacoustics products, and to provide ongoing product training and support for customers within New Zealand. There is a requirement for regular domestic travel and possibly some international travel.

An attractive salary and benefits package is offered, including a car, telephone, medical insurance and superannuation.
